INTRODUCTION

as to fill in any gaps in their knowledge.

Intermediate Vocabulary is for students who already have a reasonable command of the basic structures of English and who now wish to expand their vocabulary. It can be used both in the classroom and at home. It gives invaluable assistance to students preparing for the Cambridge First Certificate in English examination.

To the student

Intermediate Vocabulary presents new words from a wide variety of topic and language areas. Varied and enjoyable exercises, such as gap filling and word building, guide students in using the new words.

Learners studying on their own should avoid simply going through the book 'filling in the blanks'. Exercises should be done at intervals as a supplement to other materials, and students should give themselves time to practise and use what they have learnt before going on to learn more. It is not enough simply to complete the exercises and understand the new words encountered. Learners must actually use the words in conversation, composition or letters before they can feel that these words are truly a part of their active vocabulary. Although it is chiefly aimed at the intermediate student, advanced students will find this book useful to test and practise their vocabulary, as well intermediate Vocabulary is divided into six sections, each comprising a wide variety of exercises in which target words are contextualized. The first two sections contain words and phrases in topic areas, such as sport or education, and include items useful for students writing about or discussing a particular topic. The third and fourth sections, Related Word Groups and Word Building, introduce new words and practise skills such as deducing meaning, word building and word transformation. The fifth section, Specialized Vocabulary, is intended for more advanced students, as an introduction to areas of language outside those they will have encountered so far in their studies. These include formal words, slang, words used in newspaper headlines, abbreviations and American words. The final section, Pairs of Words Often Confused, is intended as a reference section to be turned to as and when problems arise with a particular pair of words. The items of vocabulary in this chapter can give difficulty because (a) they have similar spelling and similar or even identical pronunciation, e.g. principal/principle, (b) they have similar but not identical meaning, e.g. grateful/thankful, (c) one of the words in the pair has a different meaning in other languages, e.g. actually/now.

To the teacher

Intermediate Vocabulary can be used in a variety of ways. Exercises can be done as pair or group activities in class, leading to a discussion, writing activity or other creative task. Alto natively, exercises can be done as homework, with the aid of the key and a dictionary, in preparation for a class discussion or work on a specific area of language. The book can also be used for revision and consolidation work.

Slang and Colloquial Words

Slang

1 Slang is vocabulary which is used in very informal spoken language but not considered good in formal 'correct' English. For example a slang word for 'thank you' is 'ta' and a slang word for 'mad' is 'nuts'.

The slang words in the sentences below are printed in italics. Replace each slang word with a word or phrase from the following list.

made friend television policeman discarded nuisance pound(s) cigarettes alcohol prison without money

- (a) He smokes 30 fags a day. Too many!
- (b) He drinks a lot. He must spend twenty quid a week on booze.

- (g) There's a good film on the box tonight, but I've got to go out. What a drag!
- (h) I wouldn't like to be a copper directing traffic in the street in this bad weather.

Colloquial words

2 Colloquial words are words which are quite acceptable in spoken English but not in written English (except in informal letters to friends etc.). For example we might say, 'He's a nice chap,' but we would probably write, 'He is a pleasant man.' (The line between slang and colloquial words is not at all clear and many words considered colloquial by some people would be considered slang by others.)

The colloquial words in the sentences below are printed in italics. Replace each colloquial word with a word or phrase from the following list.

drunk very good child short sleep bicycle dismiss joking without money toilet possessions newspaper upper class

- (a) Her boss said he would sack her if she was late again.
- (b) There's a super film on at the pictures this week.

Abbreviations

Abbreviations are a common part of language. We use many of them in spoken English, pronouncing them either as initials (BBC, EEC, FBI) or sometimes as complete words in themselves (NATO, OPEC). Some abbreviations are used only in the written form (Bros, St, Esq) and other abbreviations represent the original-Latin or occasionally French or Italian words and are spoken quite differently from their written form (Ib, oz).
